Fighting on Karelian Isthmus Near Peak; 100 Red Bombers Sighted In South.

Government Orders More Men To Colors, Indicating Finns In Greater Plight.

BULLETIN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — (U.P.) — An unconfirmed report reached Stockholm today that a military aid agreement between Finland and the allies would be signed today. The report was published by the Stockholm newspaper Folkets Dagblad in a dispatch from Helsinki.

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI — The Finnish army ordered removal of the few remaining women and children from Viipuri today, it was reported, as the gigantic Soviet Russian drive on the Karelian Isthmus entered its 17th day with the Finns losing some positions less than a score of miles from the city.

Posting of notices in Helsinki for the class of 1898 to come to the colors indicated the Finnish plight, meanwhile.

This call for men 41 and 42 years of age followed calls within the past three days for those of 42 to 44.

As more than 100 Russian bombers were sighted over southern Finland, flying towards the important industrial city of Tampere, foreign military observers said the big battle of the Karelian Isthmus was nearing the peak of fury.

One observer said the Finnish army should be able to withstand smashes even harder than those for the past 17 days without giving way suddenly. After that, he predicted, there should be a lull in the costly Russian offensive.

This should provide time for consolidating positions before another drive started.

Fighting Closer.

One woman reaching here today said she and others who had special permission to remain in Viipuri after the general removal of several weeks ago had to leave now as a precaution because Viipuri was so close to the fighting lines it was subject to frequent air raids.

Only one civilian was reported killed in yesterday's raids.

On the Karelian Isthmus, the great Red army thrust that began on Feb. 1 was exerting severest pressure at Taipale, on the shore of Lake Ladoga, and between Hatjalahdenjarvi and the Vuoksi river, the Finns said.

The Vuoksi is a broad, meandering water system, almost as much lake as river, that links big Lake Ladoga with the Finnish chain of Saimaa lakes.

At a defile between this river and Lake Muolo, "the enemy succeeded in penetrating to our positions," a Finnish communique said. A similar acknowledgement came from east of the Summa sector, but the Finns said Russian losses were "heavy," and that attacks elsewhere were repelled.

July 15 Set As Date for Dem Parley

Chicago Convention Will Follow G. O. P. Session By Three Weeks.

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—The 1940 Democratic national convention will meet in Chicago beginning Monday, July 15, to pick nominees for president and vice president.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, acting as chairman of the Democratic national committee, made this announcement at a press conference here today.

He had been empowered by the committee to choose the date, and promised a decision "satisfactory to all." He acted just one day after the Republican committee picked Philadelphia for its convention and set the date for June 24.

It had been generally assumed in advance that the Democratic party would hold its sessions after the Republicans had made their nominations and written their platform.

There will be a lapse of three weeks between the start of the Republican meeting and the Democratic convention.

Farley said he would have set the Chicago sessions to start a week earlier, on July 8, but this would have required delegates from distant states to be traveling on July 4.

Speculate on Garner's Bid In California.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Entry of Vice President John Nance Garner into the California presidential primary provoked speculation today whether it might prove a stumbling block in the drive of New Dealers to nominate President Roosevelt for a third term.

Culbert Olson today ordered the extradition to Illinois of William Bioff, Hollywood motion picture labor leader, to face an 11-year-old uncompleted sentence for pandering. Back to the Farm From the Films

LADEN with multitudinous pieces of hand baggage, gifts from Hollywood friends and the idea for a new novel, Louis Bromfield, Mansfield's famous writing son, stepped off a Pennsylvania train at 5:20 p. m. yesterday to be welcomed home by his wife, his chauffeur and one of his farm employes.

The writer, accompanied by his manager-secretary, George Hawkins, returned after having spent three and a half months in Hollywood writing for 20th Century-Fox

That hand luggage, incidentally, represented farewell gifts from friends in the film city

Stepping from the Pennsylvania train (right) he was surrounded by hand luggage, gifts from Hollywood friends and employes from his Malabar farm. After greeting his missus (left with Mrs. Bromfield) he was eager to be off to the farm to see his children and what progress had been made on his new home.

STUDIES TAX SUIT EVIDENCE

Supreme Court Hears Motion In Mansfield Case, Sets Hearing for April 9.

After hearing evidence yesterday on a motion in a personal tax suit involving the estate of the late Frank B. Black of Mansfield, the Ohio supreme court took the matter under advisement and set April 9 for hearing of the case on its merits.

The hearing yesterday was on a motion filed by counsel for Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield taxpayer, to set aside a restraining order granted previously by the supreme court halting the assessment of taxes alleged due from the Black estate.

Until the high court rules on the motion, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe can take no action to assess the taxes. If the motion is granted, he must go ahead with the assessment regardless of the court's action April 9.

Attorneys in the case were of the opinion, however, that the supreme court will permit the restraining order to stand until the case is heard in April. That would prevent confusion in the event the decision in April definitely halts the assessment.

ROBS STATION

Gunman Forces Attendant Into Washroom, Gets $35.

A lone gunman last night held up the Pure Oil gasoline filling station at Lexington avenue and Mendota street, robbed the attendant of $35 and then forced him into a washroom while he escaped.

Louis Wills, alone in the station, told police that the bandit came into the station about 8:30 p. m. wielding a small revolver.

Wills said he was ordered to put the money from the cash register into a brown paper bag which the man carried. He was then ordered into a washroom and told to close the door. He said he came out of the room a few minutes later and the man had fled on foot.

He described the gunman as about 30 years old, 150 pounds, and five feet nine inches tall. He said he wore a brown overcoat and hat.

West Starts Work on $7,500 Job as Federal Tax Reviewer

Charles West, former representative from the 17th Ohio congressional district, today began work on a $7,500-a-year job as a member of the processing tax board of review in Washington.

West, who was in Mansfield three weeks ago, gave up his intention to run for the short term congressional seat of the 17th district, even after he had obtained a number of names on his filing petition. His brother, Ben West, who accompanied him here, filed in his place but was disqualified when it was learned that he had submitted the petitions which originally had been started for Charles West.

Ten days ago West arranged to go to work in the treasury department as an ordinary clerk so that he could qualify for the appointment to the board. The board is required by law to be made up of treasury employes.

The board's job is to judge appeals made by millers, packers and other processors of agriculture products from rulings on their requests for refunds on taxes paid under the invalidated AAA act

West's political career has fluctuated spectacularly since he opposed Vic Donahey for the senatorial nomination in 1936. Later he was made personal contact man between President Roosevelt and Capitol Hill—a position he continued to fill even when he was given a $10,000-a-year post as under secretary of the interior.

He was edged out of this post when his immediate superior, Secretary Harold Ickes, took advantage of West's absence to close his office and assign all of his personnel to other departments.

RENEWS SEARCH FOR T. B. HOME

Commission Considers Leasing East Mansfield House As County Institution.

County commissioners today had renewed their search for a county T. B. convalescent home and were considering a large brick home in East Mansfield as a possible site for the institution.

Under the present plan, the property, owned by William Barth, would be leased to a person with nursing experience who would operate it for the county.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of board of commissioners, said the county had definitely given up the idea of purchasing or building a T. B. home this year because of the cost either would involve.

The East Mansfield property, which would accomodate about 20 patients, is available, Mitchell said, but the deal will not be closed until it is learned whether the building meets the state requirements for a convalescent home.

A fire escape, improved sewage disposal facilities, and modernized heating equipment would have to be installed in the building, Mitchell said. The home is located on the top of a hill north of route 30 in East Mansfield.

If a convalescent home is established in the county a part of the county's 24 patients being cared for in sanitariums in other sections of the state could be brought here, Mitchell said

The T. B program will be financed this year from the proceeds of a half-mill levy voted more than a year ago in the county. It will make $45,000 available annually for the treatment of patients.

BLASTS AT ED SCHORR

Democrat Leader Charges He Coerced Highways Employes To Work For McGregor.

The campaign for the vacant 17th district congressional seat to be filled at a special election Feb. 27 really got hot today with developments on two fronts.

Gov. John W. Bricker and J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton, the Republican nominee invaded the home county of Byron B. Ashbrook, Democratic candidate last night when both spoke at the annual Lincoln dinner of the Licking county Republican organization at Newark.

Victor Hunt Harding, executive secretary of the Democratic National Congressional campaign committee, who has taken charge of Ashbrook's campaign, meanwhile charged that State Republican Chairman Ed Schorr had coerced highway workers into working for McGregor.

Another step in the campaign will be taken this afternoon when Ashbrook is scheduled to make his first appearance in Mansfield before a Democratic meeting at the courthouse, arranged by Richland county party leaders.

Bricker Sees G. O. P. Victory.

Bricker, speaking in McGregor's behalf last night, predicted the election of both McGregor and Mrs. Florence P. Bolton, G. O. P. candidate to succeed her late husband, Chester Bolton, in the 22nd district special election.

Striking at the importation of Harding, whom he termed the New Deal "heavy artillery from Washington," McGregor said:

"Although my opponent has made no statement of his principles, I am led to believe that he is tarred with the New Deal stick, otherwise the national administra-

Invade Neutral Waters to Save Seized Seamen

Prison Ship, With Britishers Taken by Graf Spee Aboard, Seized as It Goes Into Norwegian Territory; Berlin and Norway File Sharp Protests.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The British destroyer Cossack landed British prisoners freed from the German prison ship Altmark at Leith, Scotland, this afternoon. Ambulances were waiting for the injured.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Rescue of 300 to 400 British merchant seamen from the German prison ship Altmark by British warships which entered Norwegian territorial waters to accomplish their mission was reported today by the British admiralty.

In a battle in a narrow fjord, four Germans were killed and five wounded severely, while the British forces suffered one casualty, it reported.

At the same time the Altmark battle was in progress, the admiralty said, the German tanker Baldur, was seen passing outside territorial waters. The Baldur crew scuttled her when the British demanded she halt.

The admiralty said it had searched for the Altmark since the battle of Montevideo, which brought eventual destruction of the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

The imprisoned seamen were from seven merchant ships sunk by the Admiral Graf Spee, the admiralty said.

Two days ago, it reported, it was learned that the Altmark was trying to sneak into a German port by using the peculiar coastal formations of the Norwegian fjords.

British planes and destroyers were sent to apprehend her.

On the word of the Norwegian commander that the ship had been examined in Bergen the day before and that no prisoners were aboard, the British withdrew.

OSLO: Norway's Protest Asks Britain to Return Prisoners

(By Associated Press)

OSLO, Norway—Norway protested sharply to Britain today over the action of a British warship in boarding the German steamer Altmark and removing British prisoners after a desperate hand-to-hand battle in Norwegian territorial waters.

Five German seamen were reported killed in the struggle when the German craft took refuge in Gjessingfjord near Stavanger.

Norway was reported to have asked Britain to return the British prisoners, pay compensation and in the future respect Norwegian sovereignty and territorial waters.

The dramatic encounter between the British warships and the Altmark was described in a Norwegian communique published here which said:

"The German steamer Altmark yesterday afternoon arrived in Gjessingfjord escorted by a Norwegian torpedo boat. The ships were stopped by two British destroyers giving warning shots.

"Soon after five British torpedo boats and a British warship arrived. The Norwegian vessel protested twice, and the Altmark and Norwegian torpedo boat entered Gjessingfjord while the British ships disappeared outside territorial waters.

"Later in the evening one of the British destroyers returned using searchlights. About 11 p. m. (5 p. m. E. S. T.) a British warship followed and stopped alongside the Altmark taking on board some of the British citizens who had been on the German ship whereafter the British warship disappeared.

"The Norwegian foreign office protested sharply to Britain over this neutrality violation."

BERLIN: Angry Germans Call Seizure 'Swinish British Action'

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Authorized German sources today described as "one of the most dastardly, swinish actions in history" the attack by British warships on the German ship Altmark and the shooting of members of her crew.

The sources spoke of the incident as "the seizure" of the German vessel, although it was not clear from other sources that she was in British possession

The German spokesmen said the attack, in Norwegian territorial waters, had evoked "the sharpest protest issued since the beginning of the war against any action in the war" apparently referring to a Norwegian government protest

They declared the affair was comparable to a German U-boat suddenly entering New York harbor, boarding the great British liner Queen Mary now anchored there and lustily shooting down the crew.

The British action was described as in grossest violation of international law and compared to the British bombardment of Copenhagen in 1807.

The German minister in Norway, these sources said, immediately made a vigorous protest to the Norwegian government, demanding full restitution of the ship and indemnity for those killed and wounded He left open all doors for further German demands on the grounds that Norway was responsible for not protecting the Altmark.

"I protest most sharply against this unexampled violation of international law," the German minister wrote in part He described the situation as exceedingly grave, adding that "the most serious consequences would ensue" unless Norway met the German demands.

Today's German reaction was in contrast with that taken last night by DNB the official news agency, in announcing that the Altmark, by skillful maneuvering and the interposition of two Norwegian gunboats, had eluded a British destroyer.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"Have you snagged a nice bottle of wine, too. Is that what you have in the bundle?"

"Sorry, Rene, but no wine. You'll have to get along on water. I brought some clothes for Claire —some boy's clothes I swiped off a clothesline several miles from here, on the other side of the ridge."

As he used Rene's knife in skillfully preparing the fish, he told them briefly of his adventures during his absence.

"I was up as soon as there was a glimmer of daylight and headed eastward on a hunch," he told them. "I must have walked three miles before I came to the top of that ridge over there. I looked down, and low and behold, not far away was a little farmhouse. I sneaked up on it, to see what I could find, and on the clothesline were a pair of trousers and a sweater. Probably washed last night and left out to dry. Just as I was grabbing them, a dog started to bark and I beat it back into the woods.

"I heard a woman's voice and from my hiding place saw her come to the door and look around. Then she told the dog to be quiet. There was a small squadron of planes far overhead, and apparently she thought they were what the dog was yapping at. When things quieted down, I started back."

"But where did you get the fish"? Claire asked.

"In a pool up the stream a ways. They were lying there in the clear water, a dozen of them. I broke off a sharp stick from a tree and speared one. Then I had to wait half an hour for them to settle down and come back to the pool. Then I got the second one. Sorry I couldn't wait for more."

"Better go into the bushes and put on these clothes," he suggested to the girl. "You'll attract a lot less attention as a boy than as a girl. "Your hat will do nicely for a farm boy's if you muss it up a bit."

"But my high-heeled oxfords!" Claire protested.

"I thought of them, too. That's why I snagged this piece of old brown sacking. We'll leave your shoes here, and wrap your feet in the cloth, peasant style."

"Have you any idea where we are?" Rene asked.

"Yes. I crossed a road, which winds over the mountain, about two miles from here. There was a neat little milepost saying, seven kilometres to Emsburg. Does that mean anything to you, Rene? You said you knew this country like a book."

"It means everything! There's an army airfield just outside Emsburg. The Nazis are using it as a scouting base."

"Good. As soon as you're able to travel, we'll be on our way."

"I'll be ready tonight, Bill."

Cameron looked at him and shook his head. Rene was much weaker than he realized. It would not be tonight that they would go to Emsburg, steal a plane and be on their way to Paris.

It was the following afternoon before the three of them started out on the adventure that was to bring them safety or recapture and imprisonment and possibly death. Although Rene and Claire had papers to prove their German citizenship and good standing as Nazis, they knew that any searching investigation must reveal that they were forged. Bill Cameron had no papers of indentification at all, and could expect little mercy if he were captured, especially as he was wearing a Nazi uniform.

Cameron had spent the day reconnoitering the wooded area in which they had taken refuge, and found a fairly clear path, with few detours, which would lead them to a main road about two miles away.

At his suggestion they mde the start at about 3 o'clock so that it would be dusk before they came out onto the road. It would be easier to make their way undetected in the dark, once they knew their way, than to travel by daylight.

Before starting, Claire had retired to the privacy of a clump of bushes and discarded her skirt in favor of the farm boy's trousers Cameron had stolen from the clothesline. They were not a bad fit, although a little short in the legs. Bill said the coarse sacking that he would wind about her feet would bridge the gap between her ankles and the bottoms of her trousers, but he permitted her to wear her own oxfords until they reached the road. There was virtually no chance of discovery so long as they stayed in the shelter of the trees, and the going was too rough for the girl to bruise her feet unnecessarily.

Claire tucked the bottom of her tight suit coat into the tops of the trousers, and then pulled the sweater Bill also had provided over it. She would need the extra warmth during the night.

Her hair, she pushed up tightly under the same brown felt stroller she had been wearing, after tearing the brim a little, removing the band and rubbing it in the dirt.

"Now, you look like a country boy," Cameron commented, admiringly as she presented herself for inspection. "The idea, of course, is for us not to attract any more attention than necessary, and dressed in a skirt and with two men in uniform, you certainly would have been noticed."

Rene was feeling much better and was happy at the thought that they finally were going to get some action.

"We'll be back in Paris in no time, now," he said, gaily, "and I'll be calling on my Maria."

The French aviator was still quite weak, however, from loss of blood and his wounded arm hung uselessly a his side. He insisted that he was strong enough to travel, and without a backward glance at the little clearing that had served them as a home for more than two days and nights, they set out.

Cameron half supported Rene, and Claire brought up the rear, as they slowly threaded their way through the trees. Making frequent stops for Rene to rest, and with Bill carrying him bodily over some of the worst places, they finally emerged from the trees and saw the road, winding down the slope before them. It was a broad, paved highway, one of the many built in recent years for military purposes. Although it made walking much easier, it also increased their danger as they might at any moment encounter a patrol, or groups or artillery or marching men.

"The road is too dangerous to risk, I've decided," Cameron said as they sat, screened by bushes, resting after their final trek through a rough stretch of woods. "We'd better avoid the highway and keep to any cover we can find."

"But can we make it in time?" Rene asked.

"We can take it slowly and with frequent rests we should be in Emsburg well before daylight."

Rene nodded, and Cameron started to work providing Claire with proper foot covering. He decided, however, that her feet never would hold out with only the sacking to protect them from the rough going, and let her keep her slippers after knocking off the heels with a rock.

"They will protect your feet against stones and, properly covered with the sacking, they'll never be noticed," he said.

They waited in the shelter of the bushes until it was entirely dark and then took to the ditch below the high-banked road. Several times they found it necessary to climb up to the roadway, listen carefully to see that no guards were posted, and scurry across small bridges which spanned creeks running down from the nearby hills.

Twice they flung themselves flat on the ground, their faces covered with their arms, when they heard troops on the road above, but both times they escaped detection. Resting frequently to save Rene's strength as much as possible, they arrived on the outskirts of Emsburg shortly after midnight.

"The flying field is on the north side of the town," Rene informed them. "I was here last summer as a tourist, although I really was looking over as much German war preparation as I was permitted to see. The field is well camouflaged and almost impossible to see from the air. The hangers are underground, and their tops are painted to resemble trees.

Under his guidance, they slowly circled the town and came to what they thought was the edge of the air field shortly after 3 o'clock. While Rene and Claire rested in the shelter of a small bridge, Cameron crept out to reconnoiter.

He was back in half an hour with the information that Rene had guided them to the exact spot. He could hear a number of planes being warmed up in the underground hangars, and evidently a flight of some sort was planned shortly.

"They won't take off until dawn, anyway," the Frenchman said. He and Bill went to one side and talked earnestly in low tones for some time, and when they came back, Bill took Claire by the hand and helped her to her feet.

"Here's the plan, Claire," he explained in a whisper. "You and Rene are to hide in the ditch by the side of the field. If I'm lucky and get away with a plane, I'll taxi over, you'll both pile aboard, and away we'll go."

"But, Bill . . ." the girl said. Bill interrupted her.

"We haven't time to worry about whether I make it or not, Claire. It's our one chance—we've got to take it. I'm depending on you to take care of Rene. To help him get aboard. You'll have to move fast, as I'll have only a minute before I wheel the plane around. I don't dare attract attention until we get off the ground, and the whole success of our scheme depends on surprise. Do you understand, now?"

"Yes, Bill," she answered simply and slipped into his arms. He kissed her tenderly.

"Better take my flying jacket, Bill," Rene reminded him. "Otherwise, you'd attract attention. My papers are in the breast pocket if you are questioned."

Cameron slipped out of his tunic and helped Rene put it on. He pulled on the Frenchman's flying jacket and closed it tightly with Rene's muffler.

He turned to Claire again and kissed her. She clung to him fiercely for a moment, realizing that this might be the last time she would ever be able to hold him in her arms.

"Good-bye, my darling," she whispered and kissed him again on the lips. Then she pushed him gently away. "We'll be waiting for you. . . ."

"Well," Cameron said, gaily, "I'll be seeing you folks."

He turned and crept away. Rene, taking Claire's hand, guided her to the edge of the field where they were to wait.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—or, better still, leave your car in the garage if highways are hazardous.

Whoever got the idea that "man wants but little here below" doesn't seem to have been around much.

Colorado is $10,000,000 behind in its promised pay to pensioners—which indicates that it takes more than a law to pay pensions.

Chaillaux Day In Mansfield

NEXT TUESDAY will be a day on which Mansfielders will have opportunity and inspiration for re-dedication to the principles of sound and patrictic Americanism.

It is next Tuesday that Homer Chaillaux, national Americanism director of the American Legion, is to be in Mansfield for three talks—at noon to an inter-club group in connection with the Rotary club meeting at Mansfield-Leland hotel; immediately afterward to the student assembly at Senior high school, and Tuesday evening to a public meeting which is expected to test the capacity of Madison theater.

It is especially appropriate that Mr. Chaillaux's visit to Mansfield, under sponsorship of McVey Post No. 16, American Legion, should be within the period between Lincoln's and Washington's birthday anniversaries, when public thought is naturally directed toward those two outstanding figures in American history, and also at a time when a new baptism of democracy and Americanism seems to be needed to counteract subversive influences at work in this country.

From among the speakers who might be chosen for this task it may be doubted if any other than Chaillaux could better fill the need of the moment, as his background of experience in directing and promoting the Legion's Americanism activities has eminently fitted him for the work he is now doing.

When Chaillaux was in Mansfield three years ago he addressed an audience of more than 1,400 on "Americanism vs. Communism," and the meeting was regarded as the most outstanding of its kind ever held here.

More recent revelations as to subversive activities in the United States provide additional material for Chaillaux's talks and his Tuesday addresses are awaited with great interest.

The largest possible attendance of young people, especially first voters and those soon to become voters, is being urged for the public meeting at Madison theater Tuesday evening—scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock.

Unity For Mutual Advancement

A NEW LINE of social and economic discussion is indicated by the call of Roman Catholic prelates in America for a revival of the medieval guild system. The idea is to "bind men together in society according to their respective occupations, thus creating moral unity."

The various occupations would be expected to develop more social unity and co-operation than they have now. They would not be mere labor unions, although many of them would serve that purpose. There would be also merchants' guilds and professional guilds. Life would be centered more in these various economic groups than at present.

It will be said at once that we are already so well organized, with our trade associations, labor unions, professional associations, and so on, that no change is needed. It may also be urged that any reversion to a medieval system, such as flourished in Europe from the eleventh to the sixteenth century, would be "going backward," something that Americans are very loth to do.

But there is one phase of this suggestion that merits study. It comprehends more than a moral unity, or a unity formed to bargain collectively as to wages, hours and working conditions—it reaches toward an aspiration to work more efficiently in whatever occupation is involved—manual or mental.

Equality of opportunity can be governmentally guaranteed but equality of ability is dependent on individual effort. Guilds, unions—or whatever they may be called—that encourage high standards of individual ability, dependability and workmanship, on the part of each person associated therewith, can be made of great value, if more emphasis is placed on "How can we improve our work so that we can earn more?" rather than on "How can we get more money for doing the least work in the fewest hours?"

Dearer Books In England

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by the Publishers Association of Great Britain that book prices are to be advanced. Novels that formerly would have sold for seven shillings will hereafter sell for eight. Books as fat as "Anthony Adverse" or "Gone With the Wind" will cost as much as nine shillings.

This is not a matter of profiteering. Nobody is going to make more on such books. Publishers, booksellers, literary agents, and even authors will get no more from the higher price than they got from the lower one, for royalties, discounts and other percentages will remain on the basis of the old prices. The higher prices merely cover higher costs of publishing.

No fixed rates are set for non-fiction. If any daring publisher decides to bring out a serious work, he will decide for himself what he must charge for it. Fewer books were published in 1939 than in 1938, and 1940 will probably see a further reduction in Great Britain's literary output.

Larger Farms, Fewer Farmers

THE industrial [illegible] may be a natural process and perhaps inevitable, brings vast social changes. In fact [illegible] "large-scale farming" [illegible] the number of farms but the per cent of agricultural produce in the state.

More are still needed to operate the enlarged farms, but not before many hard-pressed farmers [illegible] property [illegible] Farming becomes a matter of corporate ownership and [illegible] There are, for example, in California many cases of co-operative owning and operating farms which run into many thousands of acres and worth many millions of dollars.

Arthur Evans, writing lately in the New [illegible] spoke of this agricultural trend as "perhaps the most important change in national life since the era of small shops and small factories closed and great industrial and business empires took over." He says that "farming as a way of life" is probably going to disappear, and fears what such a change will mean to American political, economic and social life.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Interview:

Oscar Levant is a hard man to reach. You don't just move in on him and start talking. Between writing books, dispensing wisdom on the Information Please half-hour, and composing scores for musical plays, he is a busy man.

But so is Al Goldstein busy. He represents the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in New York. When people become newsworthy and things begin to happen he writes about them. After quite a bit of trouble he arranged for an interview at the St. Hubert's hotel, where Levant lives.

Arriving at the hotel, Goldstein presently saw a distracted composer advancing to meet him. They sat down to talk, but it was clear that Levant's mind was a thousand miles away. Questions put to him received only perfunctory answers. After about 15 minutes of this, Goldstein put his pad back in his pocket and said, "We aren't getting anywhere with this, Mr. Levant; so maybe we'd better forget about it his interview, or arrange it for some other time. I'm wasting your time and, as things have turned out, you're wasting mine. I can't write a story on what you have said."

With this Levant swung around and asked, "Can you keep a secret?"

Goldstein thought this over for a moment. "If it's anything that belongs in the paper, you'd better not tell me," he said.

But Levant was insistent. For one thing, he didn't want to be misunderstood. He didn't want Goldstein to think he was rude or was submitting to an interview with bad grace. So he said frankly, "I'll tell you something if you won't say anything about it."

By this time Goldstein was feeling better himself, and he figured he might as well share Levant's confidence as go without it. So he said sure.

"Well," cried Oscar, "Im getting married—tomorrow. To June Gale. I just got a call that a hitch has developed, and the wedding might not come off."

Which, after all, was enough to distract any man. Even a strong, brave man. But that hitch was avoided. And it is Al Goldstein's hope that they live happily ever after.

COINCIDENCE:

There is an anti-Nazi play on Broadway in which a young German Nazi finds out, in the third act, that he isn't German after all. He is part Jewish. When this "disgrace" breaks around him he is almost persuaded to take refuge in suicide.

By some curious chance in casting a young woman playing an important role in this play happens to be a refugee from Vienna. She was born in the U. S., but moved to Vienna with her family when she was a child. One day, like the young baron in the play, she learned that she held a strain of Jewish blood. That is why she had to flee Austria. This is a story that isn't generally known. But it is true, and she will tell you this herself.

ANOTHER ENCIRCLEMENT

Law Penalizes Low-Priced Labor

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

In any other period of our history there is little question but that the wages-hours law would have been nullified by the supreme court. But five of the nine judges have been enthusiastic supporters of the president.

Since the wages-hours law is an administration measure, it seems clear that the court would uphold the constitutionality of the law. Contrary to the whole theory and plan of the American constitutional system, this administration has transferred the guardianship of the constitution from the supreme court—the body ordained to protect, preserve, and defend the constitution—to the congress.

No legislative body can be depended on to protect constitutional rights very long. This is the reason the founders of our government refused to give congress the power to change or abridge any constitutional right.

Since the administration regards it as necessary to maintain a technical connection between the laws passed and the constitution, the wages-hours law is "hooked on" to the constitutional provision that gives the federal government the authority to regulate interstate commerce.

How any lawmaker or judge who has any respect for his intellectual integrity and his solemn obligation to uphold the constitution, can convince himself that the authority to regulate interstate commerce carries with it the power to deny the constitutional right of freedom of contract to millions of American citizens, is not easy to explain.

It isn't strange, though it is alarming, that the president of the American Bar association said recently in a public address that due to the vacillating attitude of the supreme court in the interpretation of the constitution, a lawyer can no longer advise his client. No one knows nor can know what the constitution will be made to mean. Coming from the head of the American Bar association, this is a terrific indictment of the court as it is today.

The evidence is very convincing that the prime purpose of the wages-hours law was not to advance the wages of the great army of the untrained and inefficient workers of low producing power. Everyone who knows anything about the elementary principles of business knows that business can't pay workers more than the production value of their services.

The idea that the wages of the great army of inefficient, untrained workers who are now receiving twenty and twenty-five cents an hour—the value of their limited productive capacity—will be advanced to forty cents an hour by the wages-hours law is too absurd and stupid to discuss.

Low priced labor is not cheap labor. The leading industries find it more profitable to employ high priced labor. The practical effect of this law will be to close the doors of employment and deny the constitutional right of freedom of contract to that great army of inefficient, untrained workers because their earning capacity is small.

The small industries in the small towns of the south that are giving employment to these untrained workers and paying them the market value of their services will be forced to close by this law, or to change from workers of small productive capacity to skilled workers who can earn the higher wage required by law.

This, of course, will close the doors of employment to the weak in the interest of the strong. The prime purpose of the law, it is believed, was to drive the great mass of untrained, unskilled workers out of the industries, and thereby give a monopoly privilege to skilled, organized labor in the great industrial centers.

It would be difficult to think of a law more unamerican, more unjust, more antagonistic to the constitutional and fundamental human rights than the wages-hours law.

Listen, World!

What Is Love?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S 17, and is asking the only questions that count for most of us, at that or perhaps any other age:

"WHAT IS LOVE?"

You can see she thinks—as most of us think—that love is something outside one's self. Not something one creates for one's self, but something special and miraculous that happens to one. Like earthquakes or measles. And naturally, she'll all agog, waiting for it to happen — waking each morning, wondering if it will happen today—watching each face, wondering if He's the One—dreaming of how it will seem to be really in love at last!

Yet all the time the answer is inside herself. All the time she is building within herself, within her character, this love for which she waits.

For there's the truth about love—a truth so simple and inevitable that most of us won't accept it, expecting and preferring fairy tales instead—

Love isn't something that happens TO us.

Love isn't something that happens IN us.

Love is something we create for ourselves, out of our dreams and desires, our hungers and humiliations, our fevers and furies. Deep inside us, day by day, hour by hour, we build our own pattern of love—creating it to suit our own need, to meet our own necessity, to fit our own capacity.

Then some day, something or someone happens, and we cry, "I'm in love!" But love was in us long before we were in love. And our love will only be as big and brave and beautiful as we ourselves have made it.

What is love?

Love is what-have-you. What-have-you inside yourself? What do you want? What are you willing to give—to take? There is no one set pattern of love—no one, definite experience.

No two people in the world ever loved alike—for no two people ever lived alike. And love is simply an extension of our own life; not something apart from our life.

Love is only your own life reaching out for fulfillment—your own heart calling for an answer. And there's no use to whine at the answer you get, for, whether you admit it or not, you'll be answered according to your call.

YOU GET WHAT YOU ASK FOR IN LOVE—there's the grimmest truth in life.

If there's tragedy in love, the seed of that tragedy was first in you. If love weakens and wastes you, it's because in some secret place of your heart you laid yourself open to weakening and wasting. If love abuses you, it's because you permit abuse — want abuse.

We have made a holy name of love—a sanctified alibi for every variety of cussedness. But this thing we call love may be anything but holy. It may be — often is — downright hellish.

Love may be a song — an altar — a flower-bordered trail — provided you yourself have created songs, altars, flower-bordered trails inside yourself.

Or love may be the gratification of your egotism—an outlet for your selfishness—a hideout for your cowardice—a punching bag for your peevishness.

Love is what-have-you—

Love is what-are-you.

If you want a great love, start building it now. If you're sick of a base love, stop whining at the other fellow. Start in right now and do a housekeeping job on the one who is really responsible—YOURSELF.

Train-Auto Service.

The western railroads take a progressive step by adopting the plan under which passengers may have good automobiles at their disposal at the end of their railroad trips. Ten major rail systems operating west, northwest and southwest from Chicago, as far as the Pacific coast, are to furnish the train-auto service, beginning May 1.

Two thousand current-model five-passenger autos, of several popular makes, are to be used and available in 150 cities. Schedules of hourly, daily and weekly auto charges are announced.

Rail passenger patronage has been increasing, owing to the attractions in accommodations and faster trains added in the last few years. The plan assuring passengers that they may have automobiles at reasonable cost appears likely to appeal to many travelers, including business men and recreation seekers.—Detroit News.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHY is a ship referred to as "she"? Because, cracked Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, U. S. N., this week: "It costs so much to keep one in paint and powder."

For paint, powder and other naval needs, President Roosevelt asked congress last month for $1,078,472,577 to be spent in the fiscal year that begins next July. For weeks the house appropriations committee frowned at that 10-digit figure, then whacked it down to $966,772,878 — still a peacetime record.

Left out, as the bill was reported last Tuesday, was $28,000,000 of the $368,000,000 Mr. Roosevelt asked for warship construction. Left in: $1,000,000 to start developing the tiny Pacific island of Guam as a naval outpost, a project congress had thumbs-downed last year after Japan squawked that a fortified Guam would be a dagger at her back.

Looking Ahead.

The third of a billion recommended for shipbuilding would (a) lay down 19 new combat craft and five auxiliary vessels, (b) continue work on 79 warships and 18 auxiliaries already on the way, (c) buy 352 airplanes.

And another house committee, next day, okayed a 12% fleet expansion program—21 cruisers and submarines, 1,100 planes — for which additional appropriations totaling $655,000,000 would be required next year or the year after.

Both the house and senate, meantime, had passed a deficiency appropriation providing $252,340,776 for emergency neutrality defense work by the army, navy, coast guard and FBI through June 30.

The president signed that before leaving the capital Wednesday for a 10-day vacation cruise, but vetoed a bill to boost salaries of village mail carriers.

Foreign Affairs.

America, Mr. Roosevelt declared last weekend, wants to help the Finns "by lending or giving them money to save their own lives. . . . That the Soviet Union would, because of this, declare war on the United States is about the most absurd thought that I have ever heard advanced in the 58 years of my life."

Joining in those sentiments, inferentially, the senate this week voted 49-to-27 to enable the federal Export-Import Bank to lend Finland and China $20,000,000 each for the purchase of non-military supplies here. Opponents called the proposal an "entering wedge" for later loans to Britain and France.

Simultaneously, the senate foreign relations committee received from State Secretary Hull a letter opposing application of the neutrality act, with its cash-and-carry provisions, to the undeclared war in the Orient. To do so, administrationists argued, would hurt Chine more than Japan.

At Home

Juniors and Seniors.

The American Youth Congress, founded in 1934, serves as a clearing-house for more than 60 organizations claiming a combined membership of 4,500,000. Affiliates include such diverse groups as the Youth Section of the League of Nations Association and the Young Communist League — which the Dies Committee says "has at times exerted an influence out of all proportion to its size."

"The Yanks are not coming." 3,000 AYC delegates shouted this week at the final session of a four-day meeting in Washington, and their leaders laid plans for a nation-wide neutrality demonstration on April 6, 23rd anniversary of U. S. entry into the World war.

Told by President Roosevelt that "American sympathy is 98% with the Finns" against Russia, the young folks nevertheless refused to consider a resolution favoring Finland. Mrs. Roosevelt, though also expressing sympathy for Finland, implied approval of that stand by advising them not "to go on record for anything you don't believe in."

Vox Populi.

New York's Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, on succeeding Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933, inherited a budgetary deficit of $100,000,000. By boosting taxes and pinching pennies he soon wiped that out. But now, because of falling revenues and mounting relief costs, he sees a new deficit of $28,000,000 by the end of this fiscal year.

So Gov. Lehman proposed, when the state legislature assembled last month a $15,000,000 hike in personal income taxes on the upper middle class. To protest and counter-protest, 8,000 taxpayers stormed Albany one day this week. Legislative leaders, after listening for 13 hours to arguments assailing and defending the executive budget, predicted: "The tax is . . . dead."

Corps Without Soldiers.

The Civilian Conservation Corps, in which 2,600,000 have enrolled since 1933, is supplied and staffed by the army. Yet it doesn't raise its boys to be soldiers. The late Robert Fechner, CCC's first director, saw his job as the training of unemployed youths for jobs in private industry.

With Uncle Sam expanding his armed forces, however, some felt it would cost little and help greatly to militarize CCC camps. That this won't happen was predicted this week when President Roosevelt picked James McEntree, 56, of New Jersey, to succeed Fechner. As executive assistant to Fechner, he too had opposed military training.

Court Report.

Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, once a Ku Klux Klansman, delivered a decision this week setting aside death sentences of four Florida negroes convicted of murdering a white man. Their confessions, the court held, were obtained under circumstances "such as to fill the petitioners with terror and frightful misgivings."

Abroad

Technical Termination.

Two thousand miles south of Japan, but only 1,000 miles from Japanese bases in South China lie the fabulously rich Netherlands Indies. Last weekend the Dutch government announced plans for building three battle cruisers to defend those Far East ern possessions.

This week Japan disclosed she would let her Netherlands arbitration treaty lapse next summer. It provides for adjudication of disputes by the World Court. Since Japan has severed relations with the court, Tokyo's foreign office explained, certain pact provisions "need technical revision."

In China, Japanese military chiefs said their forces were cooperating with a Chinese army of 50,000 men supporting Wang Ching-wei against Chiang Kai-shek. Wang, a former Chinese premier, now favors making peace with Japan. Tokyo has picked him to head a projected government for conquered parts of China.

Calling on Generalissimo Chiang to surrender, Nipponese asserted their recent triumphs made further resistance futile. Chinese contradicted those victory claims, reported successful counter-offensives and prepared to float a $35,000,000 munitions loan.

Man Without a Country.

One of Adolf Hitler's early financial backers, Fritz Thyssen was credited with swinging many of his fellow industrialists behind the Fuehrer's rise to power. Last fall he broke with the Nazi regime and went to Switzerland. Soon after, the Reich confiscated Thyssen's huge steel-trust holdings. This week a decree published in Berlin snatched away his German citizenship.

Undernourished Neutrals.

Italian police disclosed this week that 28,150 food hoarders and profiteers had been penalized since the war started. From the nearby Balkans came reports of meatless days, gasoline rationing, adulterated bread. Leather is so scarce that many peasants can't even get old shoes resoled. Some food prices are up 400%.

People

Saving the Show.

Art enthusiasts in 10-gallon hats and cowboy boots jammed the Dallas, Tex., museum this week for an exhibition of paintings by Missouri's Thomas Hart Benton. The show had been a flop until a local citizen, calling it unfit for school children, suggested dressing the nudes. His objection was overruled.

Beaux Brummell.

America's best-dressed men, the Custom Tailors Guild proclaimed from New York this week, are hotel employes. Next, in order: bankers, screen actors, insurance executives, bill collectors.

Science

Why Teeth Decay.

"If you eat candy," grandma used to say, "you'll rot your teeth." This week she received scientific backing for that warning from Dr. Leonard S. Fosdick, of the Northwestern University dental school. Reporting on a 10-year study, he concluded:

1. Sugar taken into the mouth produces an acid which, with bacteria normally present, causes dental decay.
2. There is no evidence to indicate that cleaning the teeth will stop or decrease decay.
3. Increased decay during pregnancy probably is due, not to calcium or phosphorous deficiency, but to eating more carbohydrates and sugar because of increased appetite.

Research Report.

Parrots are left-handed — or left-footed. So two Washington scientists announced this week after long study of the birds' eating habits.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Why Is It Called "Atlas?"

When the celebrated, sixteenth century geographer Mercator first called a collection of maps an Atlas, his choice of designation—deliberate, happy and classical allusion—stuck.

The reference was to Atlas, Greek Titan who, for challenging the hegemony of Zeus, was condemned to stand forever bearing upon his shoulders the heavens.

So Atlas commonly came to be represented in the pose of supporting the world, a picture which still constitute the frontispiece of many map collections.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Ask But Today.

Ask but today, for it is all
Of which you can be sure.
The future is in no man's keep.
Is ever insecure.

Make plans for coming years' success
But do not let heart's all
Rest in some dream of future's gift,
It may to failure fall.

Take what today holds out to you,
And make the best of it.
Enjoy each moment of the time
And living's every bit.

Different Treatment For Fish

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

It's fish time now, and it's the housewives' turn to swap fish stories, or rather, fish recipes. When we go down to the city market, we are always amazed at the variety of fish available, and astonished that so many folks claim that there is no variety in fish.

We were told that so many cooks never think of baking fish. Fish should be cooked in a hot oven to seal in juices, but should not be over-cooked. Rub fish with salt inside and out. Stuff, if desired, and sew up. Place piece of cooking parchment in pan. Usual time is 10 minutes per pound up to four pounds, then five minutes per pound.

Codfish Steaks with Mushroom Sause make a delicious and nourishing dish. Put six small or three large steaks in oiled baking dish. Chop one small onion and four ounces mushrooms. Cook in six tablespoons water and three tablespoons butter for three minutes. Add three tablespoons flour and two cups milk. When boiling, dust with salt and pepper. Pour over fish. Dust top with paprika. Bake about 25 minutes in moderate oven until fish is tender.

Cod O'Leekie is made with codfish steaks and leeks. Clean, split six leeks in half, lengthwise. Place in bottom of greased baking dish. Place six small codfish steaks on top of leeks. Mix tablespoon flour with two cups milk. Season with salt and pepper. Pour over fish. Milk should just cover fish. Dot with butter, and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven.

Sea Bass with its white flaky flesh is a good choice. Sold whole, from one to three pounds in weight, it responds to any cooking method and is good in chowders. For a swell fish, season a large sea bass with salt and pepper. Stuff with a chestnut stuffing made by mixing eight ounces boiled and mashed chestnuts with three tablespoons bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon thyme, grated rind one-half lemon and juice, one beaten egg, salt and pepper to taste. Place fish in baking pan. Brush with oil. Bake in hot oven till tender, about 30 minutes.

CHEESE ECONOMY.

If you serve a lot of cheese in your family it pays to buy it a pound or more at a time. Keep it well wrapped in waxed paper and store it in the refrigerator. It will stay fresh for a long time.

Soaking clothes to be laundered overnight saves energy and the clothing because you don't have to rub them so hard. Cover the clothes with warm soapy water and cover the tub with a lid or paper to keep in the steam. Next morning, drain and rinse the clothes, then put through the regular laundry process.

Miss Gernhardt Appears In First Recital at Club

Marilyn E. Gernhardt, 15-year-old soprano, was presented in her first recital last evening at the Women's club by her teacher, Thurza Davey Hazeltine before an audience of about 100 guests. Assisting was Marjorie Maie Bushnell, piano student of Miss Florence Gernhardt, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Bushnell, Vennum avenue.

Miss Gernhardt, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Gernhardt, jr., Marion avenue, displayed both talent and charm as she went through a program that included two arias and other numbers that would have tried the ability of more mature singers. She was accompanied at the piano by her mother.

She sang the popular "One Fine Day" from Puccuni's 'Madame Butterfly," and the aria, 'Vissi D'arte" from "La Tosca"; the waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet" and "Carmena" waltz song by Wilson. Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich" and several "little songs" rounded out her program. Her two encores were "Ho, Mr. Piper," by Curran and "The Crow's Egg" by Wells.

Miss Bushnell played four native dance numbers, of Norway, Russia, the Argentine and Holland. Her encore was Thompson's "Curious Story."

At the close of the recital Miss Gernhardt and Miss Bushnell were presented with baskets of flowers from Miss Florence Gernhardt, the presentation being made by little Marilyn Graham and Janet Mayer.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE MAN OF ALL WORK

How often we see partnerships in business, sport, bridge and everything else which feature one titanic worker and one virtual dorne or dead weight. The heavy toiler has to carry the other member of the pair. Sometimes one-half of a bridge partnership will fumble the main opportunity of the bidding, and thus put it up to the player across the table to try to save the situation by superlative play. If you find yourself having to play such a part, here's hoping you will go to work without complaint, not just because that is the sporting thing to do, but because it is the profitable thing as well.

Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.

North began this duplicate deal with 1-Diamond. South showed his balanced strength and stoppers with 2-No Trumps, and West had the temerity to overcall with 3-Hearts, a terrible bid. North should have doubled and set him all over the place, but preferred to say 3-No Trumps.

South, who was unlucky to have such a partner, was fortunate in seeing West lead the heart Q. He won with dummy's K, took three high diamonds and led a fourth to East, who returned the spade 3. South took with the A, then led two hearts. West using his A on the second one and returning another to South. Next went a spade to the K, and the last diamond, which squeezed East.

As that card was played, dummy also held its two clubs and South two clubs plus the spade 8. If East discarded a club on the diamond, South would toss his spade and finish with club tricks. But East threw his spade J, so South shed the club 6 and finished the hand with the club A and spade 8, making five-odd for a clear top on a deal which produced no more than 4-No Trumps for others, only a bare three for some.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Do you suppose she heard me?" she whispered.

"Not a chance in the world," I whispered back. "But pull yourself together, and play up!"

"Okay!" The next instant Olina's knock sounded upon the door, and I immediately flung it open.

"He likes it!" she caroled as soon as she was inside the door. "Oh! Mary! Mrs. Graham! he says it's all right, and that I may join the cast. Oh! I'm so happy, and —so sorry I was rude to you both just now. I shouldn't have said I wanted to play for Mr. Veritzen alone, but you don't know—how I dreaded—"

"Of course we know and understand, darling," Mary crooned. "Don't think about that part of it another second! And we're terribly thrilled that you've struck 12 on this proposition, aren't we, Auntie Madge?"

Mary interrupted my thoughts with a quick query.

"When does Father Veritzen want us? Right away, I suppose."

"Yes," Olina said in subdued tones, and I guessed a bit remorsefully that her keen intuition had sensed my antagonism. "He asked me to bring both of you back with me as soon as possible."

"We will go at once," I said, and went swiftly out of the room leaving the girls to follow me.

They were at my heels however, when I reached the library door. When we entered, Philip Veritzen greeted us all with a touch of flamboyance in his formal courtesy.

"I suppose Olina has told you that I am exceedingly pleased with her rendition of the harp music," he said, "and that I am consenting to the interpolation of a role for her in the play."

"Will it be perfectly convenient for you to go through the scene now?" he asked next.

"In view of the fact that we have been rehearsing for the express purpose of having you see the result at this time," I said with a smile, "I think it will be perfectly convenient."

"Then will you please let me see the result now?" he asked.

"At once," I answered, and signaled Mary and Olina to take their places for the interpolated scene. But I could not help a curious feeling of uneasiness. What did that inscrutable smile of Philip Veritzen's mean?

which ranged from a talking bird from George Brent to champagne from Richard Greene. The sleek, black bird lifted a yellow crested head in his snazzy cage and gave Mansfield folks a disdainful once-over, refusing to say so much as "hello!"

"It's good to be back home," Bromfield said after greeting his wife and asking about the children. "I've finished my work in Hollywood for the present and I am not going back out for a long time. I may do a screen story for Charles Laughton in June, if I can arrange to write it here at the farm."

He will start his new novel immediately. It will be a new type of story and a new locale for Bromfield—New Orleans of the Civil war period. He has been "mulling over" a Civil war story for sometime, he said.

The writer was eager to get out to his Malabar farm yesterday while there was still enough daylight for him to see how work has progressed on the big house which will be the Bromfield home and which has been under construction since last summer.

DRIVE SHIP TO SHORE, SAVE 400

British Seamen Enter Neutral Waters to Rescue Sailors Held by Germans.

Last night, on new orders from the admiralty, the Cossack reentered the fjord. The Altmark maneuvered to try to ram the Cossack, the admiralty related, but instead ran aground sternfirst.

The British seamen boarded the stranded ship, a fight ensued, and all the imprisoned merchant sailors were saved.

Some Flee to Shore.

"The Altmark was overpowered," the admiralty statement said. "Part of her crew fled ashore and the rest submitted.

"Between three and four hundred British prisoners who had been battened down below were taken on board the Cossack, which with other British vessels in company is now approaching British shores."

The freed men will reach a Scottish port later today, it was said.

"The liberated prisoners state that during the Norwegian examination at Bergen, of the Altmark," said the admiralty, "their efforts to make their presence known to the searching party were unheeded."

(The admiralty's statement ended with the story of the Baldur's scuttling.)

"Summoned to stop by the destroyer Ivanhoe," it said, "she thereupon scuttled herself in German fashion."

WED IN 1938

SHELBY—Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Vera Rambo of Shelby to Richard Pennell of Loudonville, which took place in December 1938 at the parsonage of the Most Pure Heart of Mary church in this city. Rev. Michael McFadden, pastor of the church, read the single ring ceremony. Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reno, the latter the sister of the bride.

THEATERS

The Good Old Days.

THE boisterous town of the good old days, when cows roamed Fifth Avenue and a barmaid or a lady could win a man like Robert Fulton, are brought vividly to life in the picture "Little Old New York" which opens today at the Ohio theater. Alice Faye, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce head the cast. Miss Faye fights the whole town to help the young inventor, Fulton, played by Greene, launch the first "ship without sails." This picture rates with such favorites as "In Old Chicago."

Stewart Back Again.

Beginning today at the Madison theater is "The Shop Around The Corner," starring James Stewart and Margaret Sullavan. Stewart has a new role as a shop clerk. He and Miss Sullavan, also a clerk, quarrel their way into an uproarious but poignant romantic affair. Jimmy has helped popularize a new type of male screen star, the average normal young American. People like him because as one 16-year-old boy wrote, "You are just like the boy next door."

Stark Drama to Comedy.

Two features will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Ritz theater, "Blackmail," starring Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Hussey, Gene Lockhart and Bobs Watson, and "What a Life," with Jackie Cooper and Betty Field in the leading roles. The latter show is another saga of radio's famed Aldrich family. This particular play was a two-season hit of Broadway, and recently played Mansfield with Jackie Coogan. "In Blackmail" Robinson is sent to prison for a crime he did not commit, escapes, sets up a new life under an assumed name and is later betrayed into the hands of the law by a former shipmate who won his confidence.

Excitement In Features.

There have been dual roles galore in motion pictures but Henry Hull plays the first triple role on record in "Miracles For Sale," a murder mystery laid amid a group of professional magicians. It comes to the Majestic theater Sunday and Monday with Robert Young, Florence Rice, Frank Craven and Lee Bowman in the cast. Hull plays three characters, none of which resembles either of the others even remotely. The actor appears as himself with dark eyes; as Tauro, a blond blue eyed card sharp, and as the ghost of a weird demonologist. The second feature is "Thunder Afloat With Chester Morris and Virginia Grey.

Amusing Sleuthing.

"The Amazing Mr. Williams," a sophisticated sleuth, who is in reality Melvyn Douglas, will be seen at the Park beginning Sunday. He is co-starred with Joan Blondell. He thinks nothing of jilting the girl he loves in order to track down a kindergarten youngster who likes to draw beards on people. He joyfully breaks every law in the book in order to properly enforce the law. "Coast Guard," the second current feature, tells in thrilling detail the heroism and adventures of that branch of the United States service, and the cast includes Randolph Scott, Frances Dee, Ralph Bellamy and Walter Connolly.

By YUNCKER BROS.

Florida birds of the rail family squawk like hens, thereby receiving the name of water chickens. They swim and dive well but rarely fly. They have no trouble keeping track of their babies or getting them to sleep, as the ducks snore day and night, sounding like tiny steam whistles.

There were more pine-tred dogs competing at bench shows during 1939, than in any previous year in the history of the American Kennel Club. Cocker spaniels were seen in greater numbers than any of the other breeds, Boston terriers came second, and fox terriers were third.

Champion Bellville Quint Closes Regular Schedule With 34-28 Victory Over Lexington.

MADISON HIGH'S RAMS wound up their Richland county league schedule on the Madison court last night by defeating Lucas, 28 to 25, to cinch second place in the circuit standings. It was also the Cubs' final contest.

Mentor Al Fendrick's athletes, who had to win to keep Butler from sharing the runner-up position, shot into the lead in the first quarter and never were behind.

The victory enabled the Rams to finish the league season with a record of eight victories and four losses.

Lucas crawled within two points of Madison's lead in the third frame, but was outscored, 4-3, in the final chapter.

With Doug DeNero pacing the attack, Madison gained a 10 to 8 advantage in the first stanza, was ahead, 16 to 13, at halftime, and finished the third quarter sporting a 24 to 22 lead.

DeNero was the offensive star of the evening pumping in 12 points. Franks, Lucas center, led the visitors with 10 markers. Howard Hammer contributed eight tallies to the Rams' cause.

* * *

The Madison seconds staged a rally in the second half to topple the Lucas reserves, 24 to 13, in the preliminary affair. Madison was trailing, 12 to 11, at the rest period and held the losers to one point as it collected 13 after the intermission.

Bluejays Chalk Up 11 Wins In 12 Games.

BELLVILLE high, which won the Richland county league championship last week, chalked up its 11th triumph in 12 circuit games last night by stopping Lexington, 34 to 28, as both teams closed the lid on their regular season on the Lexington court.

* * *

Led by Howard "Tick" Hamilton, who last week scored the winning goal in an overtime to defeat Madison and give his team the circuit title, the Bluejoys rallied in the second half to emerge with the decision.

The Minutemen, fighting to finish the season above the .500 per cent mark, picked up a two-point advantage at the intermission, but was unable to halt Hamilton.

The Bellville forward poured in 16 points to set the individual pace as his teammates ran wild in the third frame to mark up a commanding lead.

Bellville grabbed a 9 to 7 lead in the first quarter, was behind 17 to 15, at the rest period, then took a 30 to 23 lead as the clubs went into the final chapter.

Bill Martin, Bluejay pivot man, trailed Hamilton in the scoring column with 12 tallies, while Bill Shaffer, Lexington forward, led the losers with 10 markers.

Coach John Rees' Lexington reserves stole a portion of the spotlight last night by smothering the Bellville seconds, 20 to 9, in the preliminary game.

Lexington and Bellville were tied at 8-all at the half, and the winners limited the invaders to one point in the third period and whitewashed them in the last stanza to score their eighth straight league win.

Butler Closes Season In Third Place.

BY dropping four of their first five games during the first two months of the Richland county league championship race, the Butler high school Bulldogs lost considerable prestige among the circuit teams.

Then suddenly Coach Bob Burgett's Bulldogs shook of the muzzle and began smashing down their rivals right and left.

Butler climaxed what started out to be a rather mediocre season at Ontario high last night by handing the Warriors a 27 to 22 beating.

* * *

It was the Bulldogs' sixth win in seven contests and gave them third place in the league standings.

The Butler cagers, who lost only to Bellville since the first of the year, picked up the lead in the first frame and never lost it.

Lanky Dave Grubb, Butler center, led the attack as the Bulldogs scored their seventh triumph.

Piling up a 26 to 15 advantage as play opened in the final period, the Butler five brushed up on its passing attack and scored only one point while Ontario was collecting seven. The Bulldogs took three cracks at the bucket in that quarter.

Butler led, 7 to 2, in the first period, 19 to 8, and at the half Grubb rattled the backboards for 15 markers for high-point honors. Henry Hager topped the Warriors with 10 tallies.

Bows to Mt. Gilead, 37-36, On Victim's Court.

CRESTLINE—When Dean Fisher's last second "sucker" shot rolled around the rim and fell to the court here last night it cost the Crestline high cagers a victory as they dropped a 37 to 36 thriller to Mt. Gilead.

* * *

The Onondagas led until halftime, but the Mt. Gilead five moved into a four-point lead as the two quintets resumed play in the final heat.

Crestline, League of Six Nations champion, topped the visitors, 6-3, in the final round only to see victory hopes fade as Fisher's shot failed to part the net.

The Onondagas were ahead, 15 to 8, in the first quarter, 24 to 18, at the half, and then fell behind, 34 to 30, at the close of the third stanza. Phil Ganni set the individual pace with 19 points. Crestline won the prelim, 16 to 9.

Masked Marvel To Return Monday

The Masked Marvel masked unknown of the wrestling world has been signed and will appear in one of the matches on the world's championship wrestling show in the Armory Monday night.

The Marvel was signed yesterday by Matchmaker Tim Nolan after he had asked to be allowed to wrestle "Bull" Marino, tough and tough Italian from New York City. Nolan signed the match for one fall with a 30-minute time limit.

Tygers Hope to Snap String, Gain Revenge for 41-40 Defeat by McKinley.

HOOPSTERS of Mansfield high school will attempt to treat a couple of old sores tonight when Canton McKinley invades the Tyger lair.

It is the ball game of the season as far as the Tygers appear to be concerned, and they will be in the thick of the battle trading punch for punch.

The Bulldogs registered their 14th straight victory last night when they walloped Sandusky, 54 to 40, on the Canton floor.

One of the old accounts that the Tygers are anxious to square tonight happened on the football field last fall. Leading 3 to 0 with only a few minutes of the game remaining, the Tygers accidentally knocked a desperation pass in a Canton' players hands in the end zone and the Bulldogs won the affair, 6 to 3.

A month or so ago, Canton trimmed the Tygers, 41 to 40, on the court, the victory margin being provided by a free throw shot on a foul committed as the gun sounded. A missed basket ruled good by the officals because a Mansfield player touched the netting also contributed to the Mansfield defeat.

This game is one of 14 victories registered by the Bulldogs this season, and, outside of the recent Massillon game, which was won in an overtime, it was the nearest they came to getting skinned this year.

McKinley is one of very few undefeated cage clubs remaining in the state, and you can imagine the satisfaction a victory over the Bulldogs would give the Tygers tonight.

A victory would not only ease the pain of past defeats, but would give the Tygers state-wide recognition for snapping the Bulldogs' lengthy winning streak

Canton is being heralded as THE team in the state, and it will take some fancy ball playing to keep 'em away from the state title, they're saying.

The Tygers admit the Bulldogs are good, but they claim they can be beaten. Tonight they're going to attempt to prove it.

Appearing with the Bulldogs tonight will be Jack Dugger, former Mansfield high star. He will be at center.

The Mansfield lineup will again consist of Jack Shiplet, Gene Hoffman, Don Rose, Russ Beer and Harry Phillips, with Chuck Atton expected to see considerable service in a relief role. Atton has developed to a point where he is being considered seriously as a candidate for a steady assignment.

A preliminary game between the reserve teams of the two schools is set for 7:15 p. m.

Jackets' Streak Snapped

Mt. Vernon Handed First Defeat In 15 Games at Marion by 48 to 35 Score.

MARION — A 22-point scoring splurge in the final period gave the Marion Harding Presidents a 48 to 35 victory over the previously undefeated Mt. Vernon Yellow Jackets in an N. C. O. league game last night.

The defeat halted the Jackets winning streak at 14 games, one of the longest in the state.

The two teams played nip-and-tuck ball for three periods, with Marion leading 24 to 23 at the half. Crumrine, Mt. Vernon's high-scoring forward, was held to two points.

MARKET AIDED BY OVERNIGHT STOCK ORDERS

Traders Study Statements of Low Inventories, Drop In Car Loadings.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks tilted slightly higher on the basis of overnight orders today.

Among the fractional advancers in a slow opening were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Anaconda, Union Carbide, American Can and Woolworth.

Two diametrically opposed yardsticks of business were studied by market observers. One was a statement of low inventories by 45 major companies compiled by a financial news agency and the other was a contra-seasonal drop in freight car loadings.

The inventory position showed that, despite the tremendous war-inspired upturn in manufacturing in the last four months of 1939, stocks on hand at the first of this year were only 3 per cent higher than at the start of 1939. Analysts argued this position indicated industry need not fear consumer saturation.

On the other hand, a decline of 30,000 freight cars loaded during the week from the previous seven days was regarded as showing a definite slump of business and industrial activity.

tion would not have determined to send into this district its heavy artillery from Washington."

Declaring "there is enough clean-cut issues to be faced in this campaign by both of us," McGregor added, "I prefer to meet those issues rather than try to ride into congress on the coattails of a relative."

Claims He Has Proof.

Harding wrote Schorr today that he had obtained "positive documentary proof" that the state chairman had "directed that the full power of authority of the Ohio state highway department be used to force the nomination of your hand-picked candidate."

Harding said he wired U. S. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson about the matter.

"I have full evidence that your orders were obeyed," Harding wrote. "In view of the fact that the Democratic national congressional committee takes no part whatever in primaries, I am leaving it to the Ohio authorities to determine what action is proper under the Ohio statutes.

"I now serve notice upon you that the special elections in the 17th and 22nd congressional districts of Ohio on Feb. 27, 1940 are for the sole purpose of electing federal officers, and that if you or any of your agents repeat your action or use any other method to intimidate or coerce any voters in either district, appropriate steps will be taken."

"If Ed Schorr did it, it's his baby," Highway Director Robert S. Beightler said in Columbus.

"Possibly he wrote letters to the highway employes there and requested them to vote but I did not. He has a complete list of all state employes. I didn't send any instructions out and I don't know anything about it."

J. W. Wilson, head of personnel in the highway department, said he had sent no voting instructions to employes and had not been requested to do so.

Asked to comment on Harding's charge, Schorr issued the following statement:

"The letter of Capt. Victor Hunt Harding, of California, regarding the congresional campaign in the 17th district of Ohio, reflects a high degree of political inexperience. If it will help California and Washington, D. C., for us to keep him in Ohio for a few days, we shall not object."

Meanwhile Don H. Harper, supervisor of the 17th district census taking branded as "lacking any foundation" statements by candidates that they can reward workers with census jobs.

"It should be known," Harper said," that enumerators will be chosen in accordance with fixed procedure of the census act and no candidate will have anything to do with their selection."

Earl A. McFarland, Republican committeeman from the 17th district and Ralph Hughes, clerk of municipal court, together with their wives, were the only Mansfielders at the Lincoln day dinner at Newark last night.

Ohio Dems Meet to Select Delegates.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman and the party's gubernatorial nominee in 1938, announced today he would not enter this year's primary.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's Democratic central and executive committee members formally declared today that the state's delegation to the national convention should support President Roosevelt if he desired renomination.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A Roosevelt third-term endorsement from Ohio's Democratic central and executive committees appeared more of a toss-up than ever today, as party leaders went into session.

A week ago political observers considered it almost certain that the committees, convening today to pick a delegate slate for their national convention, would urge the president's reelection.

But today an influential bloc was reliably represented as believing that a third-term commitment should be avoided in the interest of party harmony.

Democrats most enthusiastic for Mr. Roosevelt hoped for selection of an Ohio favorite son presidential candidate who in president in office. U. S. Senator Vic Donahey was widely mentioned.

However, he has declared he would not be a "stalking horse" for anyone.

An informed source, expressing confidence that there would be no third-term endorsement, said also that National Committeeman Charles Sawyer would be designated as the delegation's second choice for president.

Principal function of the session was to nominate a slate of 16 delegates-at-large, each with a half-vote, and a like number of alternates-at-large. Forty-four delegates, each with a full vote, will be nominated later at party district and county caucuses.

WHEAT SPURTS

Threatened Shortage, Poor Crop Outlook Hikes Price.

The wheat market advanced four cents today to put No. 1 grain at $1.05, approximately 30 cents a bushel higher than a year ago and the best price for this season of the year for the past three years. No. 2 grain was selling for $1.04.

Grain experts attributed the price boost to a threatened shortage in the world market due to the wars and a poor crop outlook in sections of the west, and over-sold condition in the market in recent weeks.

While heavy snow since Christmas in most of the wheat producing areas has brightened the outlook for 1940, it was pointed out that severe drought last fall after the grain was planted seriously damaged the new crop.

Crop forecasters said the odds are against a strong revival of grain that was off to a poor start in the fall.

AN IDEA, JEFF

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Jeff Davis, king of the hoboes, proposed today that railroads put benches in box cars and establish a cent-a-mile fare for his estimated 600,000 active 'boes so they might travel from city to city to find work. He said definite action toward obtaining the low rate would be taken at the hobo convention opening in Milwaukee on May 12.

The president's unofficial, unannounced third-term campaign meanwhile gained headway as Pennsylvania Democrats announced they would enter his name in the keystone state primary. Pennsylvania law does not require Mr. Roosevelt's consent. Under like circumstances, the president's name already has been entered in the New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Illinois and Nebraska primaries. It is to be entered in Oregon too.

Garner already has tossed his hat into the Wisconsin and Illinois primaries, where he runs against the president. The Texan may also cross swords with the president in Nebraska, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Campaign ammunition—more than 30,000 words of it—was hauled to the political front today by the Republicans, who yesterday decided to hold their national nominating convention in Philadelphia beginning Monday, June 24.

The Democrats will meet in Chicago somewhat later. National Chairman James A. Farley, taking time out from a Florida vacation, called a press conference at Miami this morning at which he was expected to announce the time of the Democratic convention.

Philadelphia won over Chicago for the Republican meeting, offering $200,000 in cash and the auditorium and concessions to boot. This had the effect of raising its bid to around $250,000. Chicago took the position it was not up for "auction" and made no cash offer, but promised to meet all convention expenses, which normally run around $125,000.

ARMCO Charges CIO Trying to Ruin Independent Union

FLAYS LABOR BOARD'S 'AID' IN CAMPAIGN

Official Says NLRB Should Call Election to Decide On Choice of Union.

(By United Press)

MIDDLETOWN — C. H. Murray, assistant to the president of the American Rolling Mills company, charged today that the Congress of Industrial organizations was attempting to ruin its employe representation plan by influence on the National Labor Relations board.

(A complaint was issued yesterday by Oscar S. Smith, Cleveland regional director of the NLRB, charging the ARMCO firm with sponsoring a company union and interfering with collective bargaining at its Zanesville plant.)

"When the real facts behind the filing of this complaint are uncovered," Murray said, in a statement, "it will be discovered, as has been true in so many other instances, that the CIO is putting pressure on the board to do away with the employes plan in the hope that they can get ARMCO men to pay dues into their organization.

"If ARMCO men had wanted to do so they would have done so long before this.

Murray said the ARMCO employe plan had been in operation for 40 years, "long before the National Labor Relations act was ever dreamed of" and that "No ARMCO man in any of our plants has ever lost an hour's wages on account of labor trouble."

He said that it was "very difficult to understand" why the NLRB "should spend its time attacking an employe representation plan . . . when there are so many strikes occurring all over the country which should be prevented."

Urges Election Call.

"If there is any question in the minds of either the labor board or the CIO as to the preference of ARMCO men, the sensible thing to do is to hold an election under the board's supervision as soon as possible and determine the men's wishes," he said.

Murray said that in 1938 an election was held at the ARMCA plant in Butler, Pa., and that the CIO was defeated 1,243 to 402.

"Because the CIO lost this election," Murray stated, "the board preferred charges against our Ashland, Ky., plant. The chief basis of this complaint was similar to that involved at Zanesville —domination of the employe representation plan."

Welles Sails for Europe on Vital Mission of Study

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles sails for Europe today on an "exploration" tour designed to show what possibilities exist there for peace.

The shrewd, 47 year old career diplomat, sailing on the Italian liner Rex as the personal emissary of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull, carried no plans or proposals.

He is to talk "in strictest confidence" with the heads of the warring nations and of the outstanding non-belligerent power —Italy.

Welles made it clear that he is going to do far more listening than talking.

The outstanding question for Welles to answer for Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull when he returns six weeks hence is: Are there any prospects for peace in the near future?

Up and Down THE STREET

A piece of wood from one of the nation's most historic buildings, the White House, has been presented to the history classes at Senior high school by Miss Mariel Aberle. It is a section of a beam that went into the reconstructed White House after the British had burned it in 1812. It remained there for 115 years and was replaced in 1927 when some of the old timbers in the Capitol were replaced. The wood was given to Miss Aberle, a Senior high faculty member, by a friend in Washington.

It's been a long time since Carl Simon, ex-Mansfielder now in California has "made" this column, but when he's heard from, it's usually with something snappy. He writes now to tell Mansfield friends that he got more details of the recent fireworks explosion in California from The News-Journal than he did from California papers—but adds that the California papers omitted no details in describing the cold wave that paralyzed the entire east—including Mansfield.

There was a lot of grunting and groaning around police headquarters yesterday afternoon when officers attending the weekly police school received their first instructions in artificial respiration and pressure points to halt the flow of blood. The session was the first of a series which is being conducted under the direction of Harker Enlow, Red Cross first aid director.

Mansfield autograph seekers who were in the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night pounced on a short heavy gentleman with ruddy face who looked familiar to movie goers. He was Joseph Crehan, character actor, who is seen frequently in detective and western stories. Among his pictures were "Guns of the Pecos," "Kid Galahad," "Outlaws of the Orient," "Here's Flash Casey," and "There Goes My Girl." The actor was en route from Hollywood to Philadelphia, by motor and stopped in Mansfield overnight.

TWO INJURED IN COLLISION

New London Residents Hurt as Auto and Truck Crash.

Two New London young people were injured, neither seriously, in a truck-auto accident Friday at the junction of routes 13 and 224.

Injured were Jesse Glenn Munns, 22, driver of the car, who suffered a fractured right knee, and Ilene Munns, 18, who received body cuts and bruises. Both were treated by a Greenwich physician.

According to highway patrolmen, Munns, traveling west on 224, collided with a truck driven by James O. Staats, 5.3, R. D. 2, Mt. Vernon. Staats told patrolmen he had stopped at the intersection, and was struck by the Munns car when he drove across the intersection.

BARKLEY SEES TAX SOLUTION

Believes Continued Slashing Of Appropriations Will Eliminate New Levies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, indicated today that he believed congressional slashing of appropriations would obviate the necessity for new taxes.

President Roosevelt has recommended $460,000,000 of new levies to meet "emergency" defense costs and thus keep the federal debt within the $45,000,000,000 limit fixed by congress.

Barkley's statement was prompted obviously by the action of both house and senate in trimming appropriations asked by the president.

The house preserves its record in this respect yesterday when it passed a $965,779,000 naval appropriation bill, after cutting out $1,000,000 requested to improve the harbor at Guam.

Almost without debate, the chamber of accepted the action of its appropriations committee in cutting the bill $111,700,000 below the president's budget estimates.

The president's objection to curtailment of funds to start two new 45,000-ton battleships was expected, however, to result in attempts in the senate to restore funds for this purpose.

Barkley predicted that congress would wind up its work about June 1 if it did not consider new taxes.

This would clear the legislative docket of most pending issues more than three weeks in advance of the Republican national convention, which is set for June 24 at Philadelphia.

INSTITUTE TO HEAR OF INFLUENCE OF AVIATION IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Backed by his experience as a member of the British Royal Flying corps during the war and 30 extended trips abroad, H. Canfield Cook, Canadian-born American, will bring to listeners at the third Institute of International Understanding lecture Monday night what promises to be an engrossing discussion of "The Influence of Aviation in International Relations."

This lecture, one of the most timely of subjects, is the next to last in the series being sponsored by the University and Rotary clubs of Mansfield.

Attendance at last week's lecture and forum, conducted by Prince Hubertus zu Loewenstein, evidenced an increasing interest following the first talk by Mrs. Marcelle C. Miller on Far Eastern problems.

H. CANFIELD COOK

Cook was educated at the old Upper Canada Law college in Toronto. After seeing service in the World War he spent the winter of 1921 in the West Indies and then came to America to associate himself with the foreign travel business.

During the past few years he has become internationally known for his travelogues on European countries. Outstanding among these have been "Amazing Finland" and "Colorful Poland." He has also produced a full length film, "America Flies."

The lecture Monday night at the high school auditorium is open to the public without charge.

BALLOTS READY

Sick and Absentee Voters Have Until Feb. 24 to Apply.

Ballots for sick and absentee voters in the Feb. 27 election were ready today at the county election board headquarters in the courthouse.

Requests for the ballots will be received until noon Saturday, Feb. 24, and the ballots must be marked and returned to the election board not later than noon Monday, Feb. 26, Election Clerk A. F. Porter said.

The ballots bear only the names of J. Harry McGregor, Republican, and Byron B. Ashbrook, Democrat, the two party nominees, but they have the party emblems and circles at the top to permit voting a "straight" ticket anyway.

While the entire order of 25,000 ballots for the special congressional election has not been delivered, the election board has received enough to supply the demand for sick and absentee ballots.

CURFEW RINGS

SANDWICH, Kent — (INS) — The curfew bell is ringing again here after being stopped since the outbreak of war. It was feared that the bell would help enemy aircraft find their way. Assurance has been received, however, that the bell would not be heard by any enemy. So this centuries old custom will go on.

Mansficider Sues In City Court as Result Accident Jan. 27.

Hazelett claims that as the result of the accident in which his wife was struck by Goodman's car while she was crossing Park avenue west at Bowman street, she is confined to the General hospital and has already incurred medical bills amounting to $69.60.

His petition states that Mrs. Hazelett suffered a concussion of the brain. Mrs. Hazelett was struck Jan. 27 while she was crossing the intersection with her husband and daughter, Mary.

Richland county collections for the week ending Feb. 3 were $9,923 and in Ohio $837,274 was received from the sale of prepaid tax stamps.

Not That It Matters

Two-Party System's Best Even If It Does Bring Loud, Obnoxious Debate

—By JANE WILLIAMS

AT A ROUND-TABLE DISCUSSION the other night we decided that bitter political partisanship, obnoxious and intolerant as it is, is basically good—so long as there is an equal division of the major parties.

It is, in fact, the very thing that makes a democracy function. There could be no democracy in a country where there was only one political party, as in Russia, Germany and Italy. There would be no true democracy in America if there was only a Democratic party or a Republican party alone. While the "pee-pul" might still have the right to vote for their representatives, there would be no choice in policies of government; there would be only one party's policy and no opponents to heckle.

The South was the victim of one-party rule for many years and it suffered tremendously as a result. Because congress never thought it necessary to give the South anything—the Democratic vote of the South was safe, so why spend money wooing votes when it could be spent to much better advantage in Northern states that were constantly changing their political complexions?

IT TOOK a fight between politics and religion in 1928 to break the strangle hold of one party in the South, and as a result the South has had more federal appropriations in the past ten years than in the 50 years preceding.

In my mature years I've always sniffed at the kind of one-eyed, single-track partisanship under which I was "fetched up" and I've prided myself that I never voted a straight ticket in my voting years and that I change my primary declarations about every two or four years, but I've decided that it's the straight-ticket voters that keep the two major parties going.

Voting a straight ticket year after year may not be the height of intelligence but it saves a lot of wear and tear on the cerebral muscles, and by the law of averages you probably hit as many good men and as many punks as when you so carefully choose your men.

The main thing is to keep a fluctuating balance between the major parties.

A PARAGRAPHER suggests that if Hitler, Stalin, Daladier and Chamberlain could be brought together on one stage to shake hands, the war would be over.

A fine time to get them all together on one stage would be when there was an over-production of overly ripe tomatoes and eggs.

I AM NOT inclined to quarrel with the speech in Lorain this week of National Commander Kelly of the American Legion, when he said that what we need to keep us out of war is a defense program big enough to "scare off" aggressive nations.

But I do wonder how big that would have to be. Russia, with its fabulous and unprecedented defense set-up, didn't keep out of a war; in fact it can't "scare off" the pigmy militaire of Finland.

TIME magazine thinks the most interesting possibility in the presidential picture this year is Robert Taft. Why? Because he is "dull, colorless, with not a tithe of the Roosevelt charm, utterly devoid of personal magnetism, . . . because he looks like 16,000,000 Republicans. . . . Because no purple prose has been written of him. . . . Because he has clean, clear common sense. . . . Because to voters weary of charm, he is as reassuring as a pair of old carpet slippers."

Still and all, it would be desperately hard to convince a woman voter that the commonsense Mr. Taft would be better for the country than the tall, tan and terrific Mr. McNutt of Indiana.

NOTE to Catholic Readers: You'll not want to miss the forthcoming issue of March of Time, "The Vatican of Pius XII," which is to be released some time in March. There has been a rigid rule against cameramen in the Holy City which permitted them only on a very few occasions. Pope Pius himself consented to the two reel picture, which was started by French cameramen before the war last summer, and finished only recently.

The camera has caught some magnificent shots of the interior of the basilica, in the crypts beneath the church where the ancient Popes are buried, in the Sistine Chapel and the famous Vatican library. The camera has also caught such mundane phases of the Vatican as the sausage mill, the grocery store and postoffice.

It is a rare film recording and adds another feather to the cap of March of Time.

FAIR ENOUGH!

It Seems Certain Enough That Gene Tunney Really Wrote His Own Memoirs

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Gene Tunney, always an uplifting influence and now engaged in the manufacture and sale of nutritious, character-building whisky, has reached the age at which a man looks back down the years and writes his memoirs.

The phrase "back down the years" is a sport-department term used to indicate that the writer has mellowed and grown friendly, usually in connection with reminiscent, dull-day topics.

Some celebrities resort to literary share-cropping in the preparation of their memoirs, turning over their recollections and their name-rights to underprivileged peasants to be worked into shape for the market on a percentage basis. However, I would feel certain that Mr. Tunney does his own patch, if for no other reason than one sentence occurring in his article in the Saturday Evening Post.

"My blindness to the melodramatic punch," he says, speaking of the left hook that put him down in the seventh round of the second Dempsey fight, "was caused, I conscientiously believe, by a traumatic astigmatism."

That's the hallmark! That's our boy, Gene! That's what caused the misunderstanding between Mr. Tunney and the fourth estate back there down the years.

Our boy Gene was a one for you, and people who had known him around Greenwich village back down the years used to blink, bat their ears and twitch their scalps in a baffled way and say they just couldn't explain him. And there was nobody, just nobody, who could account for his accent, which was a puzzling combination of stage-drawing-room English, Harvardese and West Side, with occasional faint traces of shanty, as when he would say, "I am having tea with the duchess."

Now, some of us would try to stick red-head pins in his discussions to mark the spots at which he would forget his accent.

But he couldn't be budged because this was not a standard accent but a home-made one, and men who know the speech of Oxford and Boston and the Sioux would say Mr. Tunney's dialect was no more Oxford than Rumanian is Italian and no more New England than Yiddish is Hebrew.

And, as for the great leg-of-mutton words that he blew into the faces of the honest, God-fearing fight writers, there was no standing up to the man.

One day when everyone was acting nice and avoiding any remarks that might possibly cause trouble he said Harry Greb had a sure case of periostitis if he ever saw one. This seemed an uncalled-for remark, because, even if a man does pick up something, is that any reason to blab it around?

Then, seeing that he had made a scandalous impression, our Gene explained that this was an inflammation of the tissue covering the bone, which probably was Greb's trouble, because his eyes always were badly punched up and the lids puffed out like eaves.

Just before one of his fights our Gene told one of our set that he was sans souci, and Mr. Gus Wilson -pronounced Gooze Veelson—who operated the training camp known as Goofycrest, explained that he meant he felt okay. That was always the way. He knew more doctor words than a society chiropodist.
